My fear is this will place sexual preference in the discrimination category. Which is what I believe is happening here. I want the school boards and parents to have a say in what is in there school libraries. The public library is a different thing. With all this gender equality talk going around we need to also think about the kids who are just kids and don't need to be exposed to that thinking. I don't see Mein Kampf in school libraries and these books that are supposedly banned should not be on there either. If these confused kids want to read that then they can go to their local library and read it there.
