My fellow Oregonian Representatives,

I am writing to you as a concerned constituent regarding the upcoming special session announced by the governor. I strongly urge you to vote against any proposals that would impose additional taxes on our state's residents and businesses.

As an Oregon resident and taxpayer in Redmond/Deschutes County, I am deeply concerned about the financial burdens that new taxes would place on our community, especially during these challenging economic times. Many families and small businesses are already struggling to make ends meet, and additional taxes would exacerbate these difficulties, potentially stifling economic recovery and growth. Instead, I encourage you to prioritize fiscal responsibility by exploring alternative solutions, such as reducing wasteful spending or reallocating existing resources, to address the state's needs without increasing the tax burden.

Your vote against new taxes will demonstrate a commitment to supporting the financial well-being of your constituents and fostering a more prosperous future for our state. I respectfully ask you to consider the impact of additional taxes on hardworking individuals and businesses and to vote no on any such proposals during the special session.

Thank you for your time, consideration, and dedication to serving our state. I look forward to your leadership in making decisions that reflect the best interests of Oregon residents.

Sincerely,

Nancie Ryan, Redmond Oregon
PCP in Deschutes County
