Oregon is already paying Way more then the national average in fuel prices. It's not our fault that the current management who makes decisions of this nature can't manage their finances in a more responsible way. And being that the state of Oregon is in favor of green measures, what are you doing to levy any road tax on EV vehicles? They are not paying their fair share like the rest of us and we get punished at the pump. Self service pumping has not even lowered the price of fuel at all! This is just typical of Oregon government these days. Tax and spend in crafty ways to raise revenue in a sales tax free state, so that you may spend money freely without restraint, rejecting any ideas of fiscal responsibility by the minority party or anyone else. The governor has already proposed raiding the kicker fund. This outrageous gas tax increase is simply the easy way out to raise money. Oregon is swiftly becoming another California tax hell. That is NOT how I want to see our state. People are already leaving.
