BACKGROUND:

The Oregon State Board of Nursing (OSBN) aims to protect the public through regulating and promoting the wellness of the state's nursing professionals, including over 92,000 nurses and 20,000 nursing assistants. In 2022, the Legislative Assembly passed House Bill 4003, directing the Oregon Health Care Workforce Committee to conduct a study of Oregon's nursing workforce and identify challenges in addressing staffing shortages. The Final Report titled, "The Future of Oregon's Nursing Workforce: Analysis and Recommendations" noted that some nursing professions had not seen employment levels return to pre-pandemic levels. The report also noted faculty and clinical placement shortages as challenging the state's ability to expanding nursing education program
