When my children were 8 & 11 years old we bought our first horse. Shortly thereafter came a trailer and an F250 diesel truck to haul our girls and horses to show after show, including 4-h, Oregon Highschool Equestrian Team and multiple Extreme Mustang Makeover events. Both of my children have been employed in horse jobs including therapeutic riding instructor and professional trainer for Mustang rescue projects because of BLIZZARD, our diesel truck. We have spent too much money doing good things through horsemanship to be able to afford another truck. After all these years, Blizzard the truck is still running strong. Why punish people like us by destroying our ability to travel with horses? Please pause and let us continue to do good through horses.
