With an increase in the Oregon Production Investment Fund (OPIF). Not only would I benefit from this help. Most importantly all Oregonians that are working in the film industry, and or on one of my projects within this beautiful state. I am a producer, director, and an original creative writer. My business and personal life it is not too much of a concern. I can take that anywhere in the United States. My concern is my fellow Oregonians and how their lives and participation in Oregon's film industry would change dramatically. Oregon is unique, such diversity in it's landscapes, with so many scenic opportunities. Most have their own stories that are hidden within them. These opportunities should not be restricted. They need to be shared with the rest of the world. So, by moving forward on OPIF that can happen. In conclusion my business and fellow hard-working Oregonians can benefit from OPIF. By making it more accessible to film here in this beautiful state of Oregon. I am in the process of getting a crew together to film an amazing story called Trip to the Woods. Which could be more feasibly possible to to have it's production with in Oregon, by this moving forward.

Sincerely,
