Adults are able to purchase flavored alcohol and marijuana. Why is nicotine any different? The same kid has the same chance of getting flavored alcohol, weed, or nicotine. Banning this is no different. I've worked at smoke shop for 5 years and I've never had a kid try to buy tobacco. These are adults purchasing flavored nicotine.

All those women on the multnomah committee make me sick. They just sit there laughing, passing snacks to each other, and not showing an ounce of respect to anyone that feels passionate enough to say something. What are they even doing, what are we paying them for?

Leave people alone and figure out how to get fentanyl and homeless people out of our city if you really care about the "children".

Maybe you should be more transparent on what this ban is really about because there is a lot more productive things we could do with our time than ruining peoples business and forcing people to go back to cigarettes.
