I am writing in opposition to HJR3

At a time when there are politicians in congress and state legislatures seeking to overthrow democratic government and take all power from the people. It is unconscionable that representatives of the people would attempt to reduce the power that remains for the people to engage in government. Initiatives are one of the only ways we can seek redress when we feel our representatives are not addressing our concerns. The rules for initiatives are reasonable. Do not seek to limit them further.
