Given the current and foreseeable economic and political climate it does not appear the best use of the state's resources, including the time and energy of our elected representatives, to advance causes that distract from or reduce the capacity of our government to focus on more salient issues. If you can look at what is going on Nationally and Internationally and come to the conclusion that conducting yet another study that could be parodied by Portlandia or SNL is really the best use of resources, then I suppose we aren't watching the same news.
