

Submitter: Kurt Feichtmeir

On Behalf Of:

Committee: House Committee On Climate, Energy, and Environment

Measure, Appointment or Topic: HB3932

From reading numerous scientifically researched accounts of the beneficial effects of beavers on the natural landscape, I'm convinced that allowing Mother Nature's engineers to thrive is a cost-effective approach to habitat restoration. Beavers are excellent water managers. They create healthy riparian ecosystems that support a range of endangered wildlife. These habitats also help replenish aquifers, prevent erosion, and serve as firebreaks, in addition to improving water quality.

Please support this wise approach to watershed health.