I am writing to express my strong opposition to this bill that undermines our constitutional rights. This is a critical moment for Republicans to take a stand and send a clear message. One of the most pressing issues we face is the integrity of our elections. I believe we need to reform our voting system and return to in-person voting to restore public confidence. While I do not claim to understand all the intricate workings of government, it is clear that vote-by-mail raises significant concerns about potential fraud. If we lack the power at the state level to address these vulnerabilities, perhaps seeking assistance from the federal government could be a viable path forward.

I appreciate your time and consideration on this matter. I urge you to stand firm in protecting our democratic process and ensuring that every vote cast is both legitimate and secure.

Sincerely,

Dan Fox
