I do not drive, I cannot afford a car and I work 5 days a week. On my days off, I clean or sleep. When the ballot comes in the mail, it arrives with the booklets of everything I need to know. If, let's say a candidate cannot afford to be in the booklet, I look it up. But being able to mail in my ballot is a relief. I don't need to request a day off and try and remember names. I have a booklet and my phone on hand to help with spelling a name correctly and extensively choosing the correct person and measure. Not being able to do this and feeling physically unsafe when going to vote in person would be trash. Let's be honest, the regime we are now living in supports and encourages intimidation in these instances particularly. So end of my long winded explanation is I would very much appreciate keeping mail-in ballots.
