Landowners outside of city utilities require a drinking water well and we are responsible for the cost of installing maintaining and operating. I can not imagine that we should be regulated or have any additional cost related to our water use. Homeowners with city utilities pay for the amount of use and are not solely responsible for the additional costs associated with a drinking water supply. I would not be opposed to regulation for agriculture or industrial use that may impact small wells for drinking water. I oppose this matter and do not support this.
