At what point should our legislators ask the question how much is to much? It is apparent that there are people that oppose the Oregon Constitution and Congressional Constitution only when it meets their agenda. Unfortunately these conditions were written for the whole body and although there are things an individual or group would go away you as legislators have to look at the whole body and dismiss frivolous bills even when there are parts you may agree with. Make Oregon a place everyone wants to live. Don't vote for any legislation that promotes hate for one type of group of people over another. All these bills do is create a division amongst the state when there are more pressing matters that deserve the attention. Any attack on any part of the federal or state constitution in the proposition of a bill should be considered treasonous and those groups should be treated as such.
