I would like to join other Oregonians that stand in opposition to this new tax plan. Why in the world should the State of Oregon be entrusted with this massive amount of new funding given their track record in recent years? I think that it is high time that state Government learn to live within its means. In this particular case, they need to focus on core road maintenance issues throughout the state, and curtail funding on pet projects, specifically those that are continually over budget. It also needs to be said that O.D.O.T. as well as most State agencies need to trim down administrative bloat. Make the needed cost savings in these areas, instead of sacrificing your actual Maintenance crews.

Thank you,
Kris Peterson
