RE: Support for SB 916

To the Senate Committee On Labor and Business,

Striking is a critical tool to hold corporations accountable to upholding values and serving the community. Union workers are often the helpers, builders and maintainers of communities. Strikes are often a last resort to ensure safety, equity, accountability, and responsibility- something that benefits all. Striking workers should not have to gamble the welfare and security of their family to make their voices heard. In a world where the corporate entities wield greater and greater power, it is essential that workers have this support to fight the good fight.

Thank you for accepting my testimony and I look forward to your support.
