

Dear Members of the Committee,

I respectfully submit this testimony in opposition to HB3075. While the intent of the bill may stem from a desire to address certain issues, I firmly believe that the proposed legislation presents significant concerns that could have negative impacts on our community.

Firstly, the bill's provisions overlook the broader implications it will have on our most vulnerable populations. By [insert details of how the bill harms vulnerable groups], this legislation could unintentionally worsen existing inequities rather than solve the problems it seeks to address.

Moreover, the bill lacks sufficient consideration of alternative solutions that could achieve its goals without creating harmful consequences. There are better ways to [mention the bill's goal] that would not come at the expense of individuals' rights and well-being. A more balanced approach is needed, one that involves thorough consultation with stakeholders and experts to ensure any action taken benefits all members of our society.

Finally, the bill's language is vague in several areas, creating potential for unintended consequences that could harm the very people it aims to protect. Clearer definitions and more precise guidelines would be necessary to prevent such outcomes and to ensure that the bill can be effectively implemented without undue harm.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge you to reconsider HB3075 and to pursue more comprehensive, thoughtful solutions that truly address the concerns at hand while safeguarding the rights and welfare of all involved.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Seibel
