What do you want to spend it on? Empty buses, “equity” bike lanes, and government waste—while you're stuck in traffic paying more just to get to work. DMV has been raising prices almost like clock work. I used to be $10 to transfer a car title now it's $126 plus the plate fee has tripled. DMV spent millions over the years to update there system and it was a write off as the system of new computers did not even work and DMV had to go back to the old computers. It appears as a money grab to sneak away hard earned workers money. I run a car lot for 38 years and now when a customer buys a used vehicle they will be paying an average of $400 to get it registered. Something nefarious is happening right now in Oregon with fuel prices. The national average has been going down and gas and diesel in our state keeps rising with no explanation. The state has put huge extra fees on electric car registration already a couple years ago because they do not burn gas. People are getting punished for buying green cars and now the gas cars are proposed to be punished for not buying green. the two conflict. One idea trashes the other. We need professional people to run and look into ways new laws will make sense for every one. I moved to Oregon years ago because the freedom this state offered me but it is all gone now with no end in site.
