BACKGROUND:

The Legislative Assembly have passed several pieces of legislation to strengthen and bolster emergency coordination and communication efforts statewide. House Bill 2270 (2015) created the Office of State Resilience (SRO) in the Governor's office to direct, implement, and coordinate seismic safety and resilience goal setting. House Bill 2581 (2025) expanded the duties of the SRO to include hazards more broadly, including tsunamis, wildfires, and flooding.

House Bill 3409 (2023) created a grant program and DHS to support Resilience Hubs and Networks. House Bill 2927 (2021) reorganized the Office of the State Fire Marshal and elevated it to the Department of the State Fire Marshal (OSFM) beginning in 2023. Senate Bill 860 (2025) modified the authority of OSFM and its representatives regarding fire protection, education, emergency authorities, and investigation.
