BACKGROUND:

The Latin term sine die means “adjournment without a day.” The sine die resolution is used to connote the final adjournment of a legislative session, without adjourning to a specific time or date. To be valid, the resolution must be adopted in the same form by the Senate and the House of Representatives.

Prior to the passage of Measure 71 (2010), the Legislative Assembly met once a biennium, during odd-numbered years. The Legislative Assembly began meeting annually in 2011; a long session in odd-numbered years and a short session in even-numbered years. As a result of this change, the chambers initiated the practice of each introducing a concurrent resolution, in conjunction with the sine die resolution, to establish bill limits and timelines for each session.

By Oregon legislative tradition, at the time of sine die, the main doors of both chambers are opened so that the presiding officers may view each other, and the final adjournment gavels fall simultaneously.
