HB4145

I am strongly opposed to all parts of Measure 114. As a law-abiding gun owner, who thinks rationally & with common sense, I cannot fathom how anyone in their right mind thinks Measure 114 will solve our states gun issues. The issues lie with our politicians (both sides of the aisle at times) who won't stand up against the criminals of this state. Instead of actually handing criminals a sentence that will teach them a life lesson, they get a small slap on the wrist & will back out on the streets, with guns in their hands, because they don't care about where or how they get their guns. Placing stricter background checks will only hinder those citizens who are trying to buy guns the right way, but then get frustrated by these asinine systems in place, that make it so they might not find out for days or weeks if they're approved. I could keep going on, but I won't, as I know this will fall on deaf ears anyways, because our state doesn't care about thinking rationally or with common sense anymore. It's sickening thinking that our state would rather protect the criminals in this state instead of its own citizens who don't want to see our state turn into even more of a shithole.
