Topic:

Any farm or even home grower should be able to have a food stand to sell what they grow. Size has nothing to do logically with this issue. It is clearly a lobbying tennis ball by corporate and large businesses to keep small farms, ranches and even residents from being providers of agricultural products to local communities.

The ability of big business, corporations and the rich to lobby out of existence competitors in the form of small businesses, small farms and ranches, and even entrepreneurial families and individuals, is criminal. It appears our governments at every level, have been turned into a vigilante police force against vibrant localized small business economies that used to exist in the 1950's, but started to end with the corporate coup d'etat and privatization movement that began in the 80's.

We common people have seen the incremental destruction that this corporatizing "movement" has made to American society since the 70's. We've had enough of waiting for OUR government employees, including politicians elected, and those wishing to be elected, to stop this destruction of human society in favor of exploitative and destructive corporate privatized commerce society.

We see what you have been doing. Stop it now and do your job and relocalize economies. We are going to if you do not. These are OUR communities. These are OUR cities, states and America, not the corporation's and the over-profited rich's. Whatever benefit y'all see by pandering to their power, is going to back fire big time. You can bet your Polymarket on it!.
