We visit the tulip fields in Woodburn every year. It gives our children a place to see nature and to learn about the changes during the growing season. We might watch a particular flower from the early bud stage to end of season.

There are several farms in the Woodburn area and each one is special in its own way. If we loose our connection to farming and farmers we have lost much more than ground. We have lost a way of life. Please let the farmers do what they need to survive and possibly even thrive in this economy. Thank you.
