This whole change is just exactly what the legislature took out of the original bill because they recognized that it was just an attempt to keep honest citizens from owning guns and if they did, the future hardcore socialists would know exactly where those guns were and where to go to steal them.

It is "Gun registration" in its purest form. Just exactly what the Nazis did before they took over Germany. The legislature refused to go along with this when they passed 114 and there is no reason why they should go along with it this time. I'm sure these gun-grabbers will put up another bill if this one fails, but we the people want to maintain our constitution as it has been for 250 years for as long as possible. These outliers are nothing short of domestic terrorists looking to soften up the underbelly of the American people. The Japanese military admitted that the main reason they never tried to attack the US mainland during World War 2 is that "Those people have too many guns and an invading force would have to go door to door to conquer them."
