Our family relies on a small local network of food producers. We are in a remote rural area where we depend on small local producers and would be devastated to lose access to our food independence and hard won freedom. These tiny farms faithfully produce high quality food and serve our community in a vital way. Shame on those who seek to take that away. Shame on legislators who waste our precious resources, time and taxpayer money to pursue what looks to be unnecessary and unjust restrictions on food source diversity. You must come up with a useful and sensible alternative or quit meddling in areas you fail to research and understand.
