As a former farm stand operator for a small family farm and longstanding food writer in Oregon with deep interests in food systems, agriculture and agritourism, I know how important small family farms are for many Oregonians. Limiting cost-effective farm stand operation only to farms of a certain size will derail the smallest producers, and this is exactly NOT the time to be strangling small-scale local producers. We are going to need as many family farms as possible in the coming years. Please vote this down.
