

To Congress,

This is the thing. Allowing people to kill each other with polluting or unsustainable practices is murder/suicide. It is governmental negligence, and I would also argue vehemently that it is unconstitutional because it definitely, by design, takes away our peace, liberty, and happiness. It destroys us, makes us sick, makes us depressed, makes us mentally and physically ill, kills us, and will kill us quicker if this negligence and disrespect for all of life don't stop. It is insanity to keep allowing this negligence to go on with the stupid argument of the freedom of capitalism. That is like saying, murder is ok because people can make money from it. It is not ok. Polluters that are knowingly and purposefully blocking progress or lying and selling products saying NO harm, need to be fined. But mostly, it just needs to be illegal. How are we going to pay for it? We need to stop giving these polluters subsidies for 1 and invest in transitioning humans to NO cars, mostly. The idea that we can be blind to the fact that even electric cars don't harm the environment to make car sales is not going to work either. Even if they need to pay their fair share, like everyone, for their carbon footprint. EVERYONE needs to pay for their carbon footprint. That is how we pay for the transition and make everyone accountable for it.

The answer to our problems is sustainability consulting and management services offered by our government for everyone until we are completely transitioned. Fix it now. It is our only choice, and NOT doing so is against our constitution, murder, and sickness by negligence and fraud.
