SB1505

I am a Personal Support Worker and have been doing this work for 1 year. Training and development are important in intellectual and developmental disability settings because they help us better serve the person with disabilities and understand what is needed for an individual to succeed.

I've been involved with education and caring for all ages for my whole life. It started in 1978. I believe I have compassion and respect for all people.

I have health care and I use it. Everyone needs to be healthy. They work and feel better. It will cut down on absenteeism and help protect the vulnerable population we are working with, as well as ourselves.

Improved wages have benefited my life because I am better suited to have a quality of life we all deserve.
