I strongly support HB 4153.

The small farms that allow people to actually visit and experience are the bridge between humans and their food sources. Many modern people are losing the knowledge of where the food that they consume every day comes from; how it is grown or raised, and all the work and effort that goes into everything before it gets to the table. I find that these hands-on experiences do so much for people and are essential for continuing sustainable farmlands for our future children.

Seeing so many children and teenagers visit every season for a fun day out and leaving with more knowledge and a better appreciation for farms is always going to be an incredible feeling.

I support small farms and everything they accomplish.
