

I'm voicing my strong support for SB 1541 by quoting Firefighters United for Safety, Ethics & Ecology (FUSEE):

"The Climate Resilience Superfund Bill will require out-of-state fossil fuel companies to pay their fair share for past damages from climate-changing emissions. That means polluters paying - instead of you and me - for benefits such as wildfire home hardening, AC units for low-income Oregonians, improved energy efficiency for lower utility bills, and more."

The Climate Resilience Superfund would be seeded with millions of dollars in damages paid by ExxonMobil, Chevron, Shell, and others, without taxes on families, to invest in resilient schools, safe infrastructure, and clean energy.
