There are a quarter of a million signatures on a legitimate petition indicating that the voters DO NOT WANT this gas tax passed. Moving it to an earlier election in order to receive less attention and lower voter turnout is an almost unprecedented low to manipulate the people's ability ability to elect government that will represent them. We keep hoping to see decisions from our government that are in line with what people want. This resembles a power grab from a party in power. I am strongly opposed to moving this to a May election.
