

What may protect one person may make another sick. The COVID vaccine sent me to the hospital with a pulmonary embolism. Medicine isn't one size fits all, each body is unique. Decisions about what to inject into someone's body should be between the person and their doctor, who knows that person's unique history with medicines. Otherwise you may be doing harm, something you took an oath not to do. Greed pushes many of these mandates as those at the top are getting kickbacks or money from patents. PLEASE don't force those of us with delicate bodies to get sicker.
