The people of Oregon have made their wishes known. They want to be able to vote on the Gas Tax and other tax increases that were pushed into the limelight, and would increase outaxes during the special legislation session over Labor Day of last year.

Trying to subvert that will, by changing the date of the vote for that bill to another date other than the November election is a political gambit to subvert the desires of those who took the time to sign the petitions.

Do NOT change the date of the Election, leave it to be voted on during the November general election.
