The governor has tried to circumvent the will of the voters every step of the way. From trying to ram through her massive transportation tax in a holiday weekend to waiting until the last second to sign it, she has proven time and time again that she has no interest in why the people want. Or worse, she is actively avoiding what the will of the people.

Now, the rest of the Democrats are taking a page from her playbook by this latest nonsense. They know that voter turnout will be lower in May and they also know that it will hurt them to be running for reelection right beside this hugely unpopular bill...so they are doing all they can to once again, circumvent the will of the voters they are supposed to represent.

It is disgusting and we the people see right through this nonsense. We see what Democrats have done and are continuing to do and we WILL vote accordingly.
