Measure, Appointment or Topic: SB1598

We don't need more government in personal medical choices. Medical choices are not a one size fits all approach. Coming from a family where we have had a child who had an adverse reaction to a vaccine, there needs to be more margin for personal choice and doctors to approach their patients as individual. What works for one person may not work for the next. We don't need unelected public health officials to make decisions affecting all of us, without further legislation or public debate. I stand against SB1598.
