As a frequent traveler to Oregon from California, I am the kind of person who would be paying this transient tax. About half the time I camp out, and the other half I stay in lodging, mostly motels in small towns and cities. This tax will help support the natural features of Oregon, especially the high desert of Oregon's wonderful East Side but also the southern and central Oregon coast, that are the reasons for my visits. It is a small additional, reasonable price to pay for the quality-of-life benefits I receive. As a senior on a limited fixed income, I don't take additional taxation lightly; but this tax would be more than worth it for me.
