At a time when the federal government is trampling over the rights of citizens, it is deeply upsetting to see that Oregon is going along with making it more difficult for anyone to purchase guns (outside of LEOs) to protect themselves and their neighbors. Having to pay to have access to the 2nd Amendment seems wrong. What's next, the government will let us have free speech so long as we pay for it? I can understand wanting to prevent suicides, but restricting everyone else's constitutional rights is not the way to achieve that.
