The Supremacy Clause

The Supremacy Clause in the U.S. Constitution (Article VI, Clause 2) establishes that federal laws, treaties, and the Constitution are the supreme law of the land, taking precedence over any conflicting state laws. This means that all states must follow federal laws, as stated in the Supremacy Clause, which ensures that federal authority prevails over state authority. The Supremacy Clause was designed to maintain a strong federal government and prevent state interference with federal operations.

Article VI, Clause 2:

This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding.
